Aboriginal Student Services Centre (ASSC)

The University of Alberta is home to a diverse and welcoming community of over 1,000 Aboriginal students from across the country, while the city of Edmonton is home to the second-largest Aboriginal population of any city in Canada. We celebrate our Aboriginal heritage, including the ancestral lands on which our university is located today, and we are proud to be the only university in Canada with a Faculty of Native Studies!

The Aboriginal Student Services Centre (ASSC) helps the U of A provide an environment that encourages full access, participation and success for Aboriginal students.

Our vision statement recognizes our commitment to the Aboriginal community on campus and for providing services that reflect this responsibility: ASSC honours the Indigenous worldview of education as a continuous ceremony of learning by respecting and supporting the voices and spirit of our community at the University of Alberta.

Camp fYrefly is Canada’s only national leadership retreat for lesbian, gay, bisexual, trans-identified, two-spirited, intersex, queer, questioning, and allied youth. All of our Camp programming is guided by input from youth and facilitated by trained educators and youth workers in collaboration with a team of artists, dramatists, and community and youth leaders.

The Camp, guided by an arts-based educational philosophy, is jam-packed with dance, drama, music, writing, visual art, empowerment and reflection exercises, anti-oppression work, personal growth opportunities, healthy socialization, and in-depth learning activities about specific youth topics and social issues.

In sum, Camp fYrefly’s programming focuses on four key areas: leadership, individual development, socialization, and resiliency.

Faculty of Arts: Department of Women’s and Gender Studies

The Department of Women’s and Gender Studies offers queer-friendly and inclusive space for faculty, staff, and student body through our courses as well as ongoing intellectual and social activities.

Inclusivity is fundamental to the Department’s understanding of Women’s and Gender Studies. In academic terms, queer, lesbian, and trans issues are covered in many if not all of our undergraduate classes, and are given significant attention in classes like: Feminism and Sexuality, Body Politics, Masculinities, and many special topics classes.

The department offers a yearly Feminist Research Speakers’ Series that often features scholars who engage queer theory. The Women’s and Gender Studies office space, which is open to all students, is home to the Winnie Tomm reading room, a student lounge, and an all-gender washroom.

The Safe Spaces Initiative is a University of Alberta initiative developed and implemented by the Institute for Sexual Minority Studies and Services (iSMS). This Initiative is built on the premise that our University campuses should be safe places – physically, emotionally, and intellectually – for sexual and gender minority students, faculty and staff. This means that all students, faculty and staff are recognized, respected, and accommodated across identities and differences in all aspects of University life.

Sexual and gender minority individuals on campus should feel free to express themselves without fear of judgment or criticism, and have their concerns addressed and needs supported by all University employees, policies, procedures, and facilities.

The Safe Spaces Initiative does consultations, educational outreach, as well as provides educational resources.

University of Alberta Students’ Union: Peer Support Centre

The Peer Support Centre, formerly the Student Distress Centre, is a Students’ Union service that offers the University community a place to talk to someone for support. Opened in 1969, Peer Support Centre provides information, referrals, crisis intervention and a completely confidential place to talk.

Peer Support Centre volunteers are University of Alberta students trained in supportive listening, communication and referral skills. These non-judgmental volunteers are here to listen to you objectively and empathetically, and the Peer Support Centre follows a principle of non-directiveness — you are the expert of your situation. Instead of offering advice, volunteers will help you clarify the problem and uncover your own resources and solutions.

The Peer Support Centre maintains an extensive referral list, and volunteers have access to updated information about campus and broader community resources. If a volunteer is not equipped to help you, they can refer you to someone with the appropriate resources or skills. Volunteers can assist with both academic and personal problems. No concern is too big or too small, whether you need to know how to have an exam deferred, where to find information on eating disorders, or whether you want to talk to someone about a personal loss or suicide. You can drop in to 2-707 SUB or call us at 780-492-HELP (780-492-4357). You can also book an appointment, inquire about volunteer opportunities, or learn more about the Centre by calling 780-492-4268 or e-mailing psc@su.ualberta.ca

Note: The Peer Support Centre does not have set hours of operation over the summer (May- September). It is best to phone or email ahead of time to book an appointment. However, if you swing by Monday-Friday and the door is open please come in and we will do our best to support you immediately. If we are unavailable, call the Edmonton Distress Line at 780-482-HELP to talk to someone right away, 24 hours a day.

University of Alberta Students’ Union: Safewalk

Safewalk provides a safe and reliable alternative to walking alone at night around the Campus community and beyond. Safewalk was created not as a reaction to crime, but as a proactive step to build the safest possible campus community. We serve campus by walking clients and patrolling as a measure of crime deterrence, while upholding a strict policy of non-intervention.

Safewalk is free of charge and is available to any member of the surrounding community—undergrads, graduate students, staff, faculty, and members of the public. Whether you don’t like to walk alone after dark, or would just like some company on your trip, give us a call!

To use Safewalk, call 780 4 WALKME (780 492 5563). Our dispatchers will send a two-person team to meet you and walk you anywhere within our boundaries.

You can also approach any patrolling team on campus or come down to our office in the Lower Level of SUB and talk to the dispatcher in person.

Winnie Tomm Reading Room

Named after the Women’s Studies Program’s first program coordinator, the Reading Room is open to everyone and consists of an impressive library of books, journals, and other resources collected by way of donations. The library includes many LGBTQI resources.

We hold office hours and book appointments for students and staff to use our extensive library of books and academic journals, as well as act as a meeting place for students to come ask for help, hang out, and enjoy some tea.
